

Brain Bump

What it does

People quickly forget what they read in a book or hear on a podcast. Many don't even read a book all the way through or listen to the whole podcast. Brain Bump helps people retain what they read and hear.

How it works

Brain Bump is a patent-pending app that combines the core functionality of a book summary app, a flashcard app, and a daily affirmation app. It takes the highlights from the content and puts them in the user's pocket.

The innovation

The user doesn't even need to open the app, since the passive learning of the push notifications helps keep the content (and brand) top of mind without requiring the user to take any action.

Why it's unique

- Book summary apps don't help you remember what you learn.
- You don't need to open the app; it can push the information to you and takes only seconds a day to work.
- It supports multiple types of content: books, blogs, podcasts, classes, and talks.
- The tips are provided for you.
- It's completely free.

Other

It has an innovative social media share that combines the functionality of a design tool like Canva and a content set like Bartlett's Familiar Quotations. People can readily find and share relevant content in seconds.

Praise for Brain Bump

“I truly believe that this new innovative format enables people the microlearning they desire and the ability to reference larger amounts of content when it suits them. It is a great way to build my brand and content library.”

—Ben Baker of Your Brand Marketing and co-author of Leading Beyond a Crisis, one of the many books on the app.

“I love the Brain Bump app! It’s so fast and easy and jumpstarts my day with tips and information I can use right away. It’s good to know that I can go there and find what I’m looking for – any time, even at the last minute. It’s helped me prepare for presentations, and I can go back and review key ideas whenever I want to. Brain Bump does even more than I expected, so I use it every day.”

—Jan Wallen author of Raise Your Fees Without Losing Clients

“At a time when our work lives are constantly changing, I believe it is critical to have effective and efficient ways to offer people the information they need to navigate their careers and the marketplace. I am thrilled to share my expertise and experience as a career and executive coach through Brain Bump, as I can best address people's career needs in a timely manner.”

—Tammy Gooler Loeb, author of Work from the Inside Out
